Your Wedding Day

It's the day that you've dreamt about your entire life. And now it's almost here. Soon the countless hours that you've spent planning will come to fruition and before you know it, the day will have past.

The cake will be eaten, and the flowers will wilt. The tuxedos will be returned and your dress will be carefully cleaned and packed away. All that will be left will be your memories of your perfect day—and the photographs.

We understand the importance of capturing your most important memories in an unobtrusive manner. We'll be there throughout the day, and chances are we'll even capture a few images of things you didn't even remember.

Choosing a Photographer

It sounds strange, but aside from your fiancée, you'll spend more time on the day of your wedding with your photographer than anyone else. We think it's important that you have a good rapport with your photographer. We want you to feel like you've invited an old friend (with a really nice camera) to be a part of your day.

This is why we don't accept every wedding commission that is offered and why we insist on meeting with all of our brides and grooms before signing the contract.

Our whole goal is to remove any concerns that you might have about photography, so you can sit back, relax, and enjoy your wedding day. After all, you'll have plenty of other things on your mind!

Wax Art Portraits

For the ultimate in photographic art, choose to have one of your wedding photographs made into a wax art portrait. Due to the handcrafted nature of these portraits, the lead time is approximately three months.
